Drop/Add Policy - The add/drop period for each quarter is designated as the period when students may add or remove courses to finalize their schedules. Add/drop dates in the table above reflect those dates applied to first-time enrollments at the specified start date:

First-Time Student Add/Drop Policy

The first fourteen calendar days of a student's first quarter is designated as the add/drop period for first-time Bryan University students. This is the period when students may add or remove courses in order to finalize their schedules for the quarter. Students who cancel their enrollment during this period will not incur tuition charges; however, they will be responsible for books and fee obligations, including the application fee. Students who wish to make course changes must request approval from the Bryan University Registrar.

Re-Enter and Continuing Student Add/Drop Policy

The first seven calendar days of each quarter beyond the first quarter is designated as the drop/add period for continuing students or re-enters. This is the period when students may add or remove courses in order to finalize their schedules for the quarter. Students who cancel their enrollment during this period will not incur tuition charges; however, they will be responsible for books and fee obligations, including the application fee. Students who wish to make course changes must request approval from the Bryan University Registrar.

Continuing Students Registration Timeline: Students may be permitted to register/enroll for each available calendar start date through the first week of each Quarter Start Date.
